Recruited in August and September, 1862, and Discharged July 20th, 1865.

The 143d Regiment New York Infantry Volunteers was recruited in the counties of Sullivan and Tompkins. Companies A. B. C. E. F. G. H. & I. were recruited in Sullivan, D. & I. were first recruited in Tompkins but not being full were filled after coming to the 143d N. Y.

The first authority to recruit in Sullivan county, in 1862 was given by Col. Ellis, in July, he was then raising the 124th, which was to be raised in the counties of Orange and Sullivan; August 12th, 1862, authority was obtained to recruit a regiment in Sullivan and the companies forming for the 124th were turned over to the county organization. The regiment not filling up as fast as desired arrangements were made with two companies then raising in Tompkins county. Capts. Higgins and Marvin brought what men they had, and some companies in Sullivan county, not filled, were consolidated with these two companies and some other of the companies not filled and the regiment was brought up to maximum strength.

The regiment went into camp at Camp Holley, near Monticello, N. Y., early in September, and companies D. and I. joined the regiment the last of September. The regiment was mustered in by Lieut Crowley, for 3 years, Oct. 8th, 1862, and the regimental colors were presented by the citizens of Sullivan county, October 9th. Hon. O. B. Wheeler made the presentation speech. The regiment started for the front, October 10th, 1862, marched to Middletown, N. Y., from there by rail; they lay some two days in New York city, in barracks then standing where the present Postoffice Building is situated. When they reached Washington they were assigned to the defences of that city, and put on picket and fatigue duty, in Virginia, and were camped at Upton's Hill, Va., first, then later at near Cloud's Mills, Va., and in April, 1863, they were sent, with other troops, to the relief of Suffolk, Va. After the siege of Suffolk, was raised, with other troops, under Gen. Keys, went to West Point, Va., and after Chancellorsville was fought they went to Yorktown, Va., June 1st, and then up to White House, Va., reaching there June 27th and starting back for Yorktown July 8th, reaching there 10th inst. and so on to the transports, and sent to Washington, and from there, by rail, to Frederick City, Md., which place was reached July 12, and then was sent out to reinforce Meade's army, then lying near Hunkstown, Md. A few days later Gen. Meade's army followed Lee's army into Virginia and the regiment crossed the Potomac, near Berlin, Va., and marched to near Warrington Junction, Va., where they went into camp. They lay until in September, 1863, when, after the battle of Chickamauga, Ga., was fought by Gen. Rosecrans, Gen. Joseph Hooker was sent west to the relief of Gen. Rosecrans at Chattanooga, Tenn. with the 11th and 12th Army Corps. They went by rail to Bridgeport, Ala., and there these two corps began a campaign that after fighting the battle of Wauhatchie, Tenn, Oct. 29th, 1863, resulting in opening the cracker road to Chattanooga, the regiment with the 11th and 12th corps was in Lookout Valley, Tenn., until the battle of Missionary Ridge, and the day before that battle began, the division, in which the regiment belonged, was put just night into the company streets of the 14th corps and the first day was among the troops that moved against the enemy's center at Orchard Knob. The 2nd day's fighting they were among the troops sent by Gen. Grant to the left to Gen. Sherman and were at the last of the battle on left of the army and as soon as Braggs army was routed the regiment, with other troops, under Gens. Sherman and Howard, were sent to the relief of Gen. Burnside's force, at Knoxville, Tenn. The whole command were in light marching order, having left knapsacks, etc. in camp, and were stripped for battle before going into Missionary Ridge. It was cold weather, rained and snowed part of the time and froze hard, and the troops suffered severely from the cold and insufficient protection from the storms. The only way they could keep from perishing, at night, was by burning large fires, (sometimes in parallel lines and lying between the fires, feet towards the fire and heads in the center) and sleeping beside them. At Loudon, Tenn., Dec. 4th and 5th, 1863, the regiment was detailed to bridge the Little Tennessee river, a wide swift river some 300 yards wide, which they bridged between 7 p. m. and 5 a. m., making most of the bridge of wagons with two planks from bolster and from wagon to wagon. The last of benches, where the water was deepest, and many of the men were, of necessity, in the water, and it was so cold a man coming out of the water he could not get to the top of the river bank before his clothes were frozen stiff. After relieving Gen. Burnside the troops marched and went into camp at Lookout Valley, for a short time, and in January 1864, moved to Bridgeport, Ala., and went into winter quarters, where they lay until the Atlanta campaign opened. The 11th and 12th corps were consolidated and formed the 20th corps and Gen. Hooker in command. The Atlanta campaign opened in May, 1864, the battle of Rocky Faced Gap, Ga., opened the campaign but the battle of Resaca, Ga., May 13th, 14th and 15th, 1864, was the first pitched battle of the campaign. After Resaca and Johnston fell back the 143rd bridged one of the branches of the Etowah River in a short time so the infantry crossed on it.

From May 25th 1864, when the battle of Pumpkinvine Creek, Ga., opened, to July 3rd, 1864, it was about one continuous fighting and skirmishing and during which the enemy's positions of Altoona and Kenesaw Mountains were completely turned and fell into our army's hands. After maneuvering our army succeeded in getting on the south side of the Chattahoochee river and July 20 the battle of Peach Tree Creek, Ga., was fought. The investment of the city of Atlanta, by works, began July 22d, building heavy works, and from the last date to latter part of August the regiment was in exposed position in the line of investment, and almost constantly some portion, if not all of it, was under fire.

The 20th corps occupied the city of Atlanta, Sep. 2nd, 1864, and during the Atlanta campaign from May 7, 1864, to latter part of August, 1864, some portion of the regiment were almost daily under fire and men of the regiment, wounded early in that campaign, rejoined their command before it was over. They lay at Atlanta, Ga., until Nov. 15, 1864, when Gen. Sherman moved out and began his campaign against Savannah, Ga., passing through Milledgeville, Ga., and several smaller towns. Gen. Sherman's army invested the city of Savannah, Dec. 10th, 1864, and the 143d was represented on the skirmish and picket line that day. The city surrendered, Dec. 22nd, 1864, and on or about January 15th or 16th, 1865, Sherman began his campaign through the Carolinas. Near Robertsville, S. C., the first brush with the enemy was had 143d, N. Y. skirmishing. They fell back and Sherman's troops occupied the town. This campaign opened with swollen streams and mud and they had to march often from knee to waist deep in water, and were at Fayetteville, N. C., early in March, where the army rested a day or two. The day after it moved on, the battle of Averysboro, N. C., was fought, (March 16th, 1865,) and three days later, March 19th, the battle of Bentonville, N. C., began. The brigade to which the regiment belonged, occupied the ground Carlins Division of the 14th corps were forced to fall back from. The 143d was on the extreme left, with no connections on their left flank, but held their ground for several hours and until night set in. The commander of the division, after that fight, said the 143d; N. Y., was made of staying qualities.

Shermans army occupied Goldsboro, N. C., March 25th, 1865. His troops lay there until after Lee's surrender when he marched to intercept General Johnston's army, and after some fighting resulted in the surrender of Johnston's army, then the whole of Gen. Sherman's army marched to Washington, D. C., were reviewed May 24th, 1865, and was disbanded, and the regiment was put into a temporary brigade and lay near Washington until July 20th, 1865, when it was mustered out of service and sent to New York city to be paid off and disbanded.

The regiment was reviewed at New York City by General Joseph Hooker and city officials, and General Hooker in front of the Astor House said a few words to the boys. He told them he was not given to speech making, but that he could not let the regiment disband without saying a word to them. After thanking them for the many times they had stood to their places he said "it could be said of them what could not be said of many regiments, he did not know as of any others—the Johnnys had never seen their backs: that if they had at Peach Tree Creek, God only knows what the result would have been."

The 143d New York were in the 4d Brigade Abercrombie's Division from October 16, 1862, in the 22d Corps from February 1863; in 3d Hughston's Brigade, Gurney's Division Department, Virginia, at Suffolk, Virginia, from April 1863; in 1st Brigade Gordon's of 7th Corps, from May, 1863; in the 4th Corps from June, 1863; in 1st Brigade, 3d Division, 11 Corps, from July 14, 1863; in 3d Brigade, 1st Division, 20th Corps, from April, 1864; in 2d Brigade, Bartlett's Division, 22d Corps from June 30, 1865.

The 143d New York took part in:

The siege of Suffolk, Virginia, April and May, 1863;

Battle of Nansemond, Virginia, May 3d, 1863;

Under General Keys on Peninsula, Virginia, May, June and July, 1863;

Battle of Resaca, Georgia, May 13, 14 and 15, 1864;
Battle of Cassville, Georgia, May 19th to 22d, 1864;
Battle of Pumpkinvine Creek, Georgia, May 25, 1864;
Battles around Ackworth, Kenesaw Mountain, Lost Mountain, Big Shanty, Marietta, Golgotha, Nose Creek and Culp's Farm, June 4 to July 2, 1864;
Battle of Peach Tree Creek, July 20, 1864;
Siege of Atlanta, July 22 to August 26, 1864;
Atlanta to Savannah, "March to the Sea," November 15 to December 22, 1864;
Battle of Montieth Swamp, Georgia, December 9, 1864;
Campaign of the Carolinas, January 17 to April 26, 1865;
Battle of Robertsville, S. C., January 29, 1865;
Battle of Lawtonville, S. C., Feb. 2, 1865;
Battle of Averysboro, N. C., March 16, 1865;
Battle of Bentonville, N. C., March 19, 1865;
Battle near Goldsboro, N. C., March 27, 1865;
Battle near Akin Creek, N. C., April 10, 1865;
Battle near Bennett House, N. C., April 26, 1865.

General Horace Boughton, appointed to the Colonelcy of the 143d Regiment after the resignation of Colonel Dewitt, was born at Rust, New York, March 23d, 1833, and was educated at the Genesee Wesleyan Seminary and Genesee College. He studied law at Rochester, where in April 1861 he enlisted and was made First Lieutenant in the Thirteenth New York Volunteer Infantry. Later he was made Captain of his company. In the fall of 1862 he was commissioned Lieutenant Colonel of the 143d Regiment, and in 1865 he was made Brigadier General of Volunteers for "faithful and meritorious services." From 1866 to 1870 he was United States Revenue Collector for the 4th District of Texas. For nearly twenty years General Boughton was an invalid, having sustained partial paralysis, the result of exposure while in active service. He died at Washington November 8th, 1891.

General David Porter DeWitt, the first Colonel of the 143d Regiment, was born in Hoboken, N. J., July 10th, 1817, and in June, 1832, entered the West Point Military Academy from which he graduated in June 1836. On his graduation he was commissioned as Second Lieutenant in the United States Second Artillery. He resigned his commission in the army to accept a position as engineer in the survey and location of the Erie Railroad which was then being built. He continued in the employ of the Erie company until 1857, when he went to Canada and located the Ontario, Simcoe and Huron Railroad. In 1859 he entered the service of the United States Express Company; in 1861, on the breaking out of the war, he was commissioned Major of the Maryland Volunteers. In March 1862 he was commissioned Colonel of the 3d Maryland Regiment, and served in Virginia under General Banks and General Pope, participating in the battles of Cedar Mountain and Beverly Ford. Active service reduced the 3d Maryland to 250 men, and he resigned its command and was commissioned Colonel of the 143d Regiment. In July 1863, on account of disease contracted in the service, he resigned from the 143d, and was made Major in the 10th Veteran Reserve Corps, of which he was made Colonel in August 1863. In 1865 he was made Brigadier General for "faithful and meritorious services." Death closed his distinguished and useful career at Middletown, Orange County, N. Y., on Tuesday, February 26th, 1889.

SUMMARY OF CONSTITUTION AND BY-LAWS.

1st—The association shall be known as the survivors of the 143d Regt. N. Y. Inf. Vols.

2d—All honorably discharged officers and soldiers are eligible to membership and to hold office therein.

3d—The object is to continue that spirit of loyalty and fidelity to country that brought us together; to perpetuate its principles; to collect facts and make a record of the same, and to establish and maintain a complete roster of the regiment.

4th—Political and other discussions foreign to the object of the association prohibited.

5th—Meets annually Oct. 10th, unless that day comes on Saturday, Sunday or Monday, when it will meet on the Tuesday following. The place of meeting fixed by vote of association at business meeting.

6th—Officers: A President, 1st and 2d Vice-Presidents, Secretary, and Treasurer elected annually.

7th—The President shall preside at all meetings, and shall give at least two weeks notice of all meetings in the papers, and secure reduced rates to meetings when he can.

8th—The Vice-Presidents possess powers of President in his absence.

9th—The Secretary shall keep minutes of all meetings, and shall be the Corresponding Secretary of the Association.

10th—The Treasurer shall give a bond—the amount to be fixed by the association; receive and pay all moneys, and report at each annual meeting.

11th—Members elected by 2-3 vote at annual meetings.

12th—Any member may be expelled by 2-3 vote of any annual meeting for conduct unbecoming a soldier and a gentleman, of which the association shall be the judge; the accused to have notice and opportunity to defend himself.

13th—Cushing's Manual shall govern all meetings.

14th—The annual dues, fixed at twenty-five cents, subject to change by 2-3 vote; members in arrears not entitled to vote.

15th—All standing resolutions considered By-Laws and to be recorded between the Constitution and minutes.

16th—The Constitution and By-Laws amended by majority vote, a notice of the amendment having been given at the preceding annual meeting.
